OPENING ROUNDS IN LAKEWOOD'S HOLI-DAY TOURNAMENT

FORTY PLAYERS ON THE LINKS-MALLOUF MAKES THE BEST SCORE-DAVIS BEATEN BY KIMBALL-FINAL MATCHES

TO-MORROW. Lakewood, N. J., Dec. 30 (Special).-The winter golf season promises to become almost as brisk as that of midsummer. To-day the Golf Club of Lakewood began an open tournament which is to last over New Year's Day, and forty players, representing some of the most prominent golf clubs in this part of the country, were on the links. The big hotels are thronged with holiday visitors, and most of them are spending their time playing golf. The to To-day's gathering was the largest that has appeared since the Thanksgiving tournament. Andrews, Fairfield, Westbrook, Garden City, Philadelphia, Dyker Meadow and a host of other well known clubs were represented. Walthew, who has been spending several weeks in a tour of Texas links, made his first appearance this season, and won fourth place. Douglas, the ex-champion, who was expected to play against Davis, sent word at the last moment that he could not take part, but the strong showing from other quarters partly compensated for his absence.

The tournament opened with a preliminary round at medal play, in which the contestants were sepa-rated into five divisions of eight each, according to their scores. These divisions met at match play if the afternoon, and on Monday the semi-final and final rounds will bring the contest to a close. In spite of a biting wind there was a crowd of onlookers at the clubbouse when the first pair started off. The medal round was at eighteen holes, and though the entry list was far in excess of what committee had anticipated it passed off without a hitch. For a while it looked as though Davis. who was Douglas's conqueror at Atlantic City. would carry off first place, but just at the end Mallouf, a sixteen-year-old youngster from the Garden City Golf Club, came in with a score of 48, which beat Davis's card by two strokes. Considering the condition of the course and the biting wind, these figures stand for exceptionally good golf. E. De Forrest Simmons, of the St. Andrews Golf Club, followed Davis with 98, and then came The final record: The first eight all finished under 105, which indicates the pace set by the

In the afternoon considerable surprise was oc casioned by the defeat of Davis by F. P. Kimball. casioned by the defeat of Davis by F. P. Kimball, of the home club, who won his first round match by 2 up and 1 to play. Mallouf, who led the morning field, was also beaten by Waithew by a similar score, which shows that medal play is not always a convincing test of merit. Jasper Lynch heat Gillesnie, of Fairfield, in the same round by 4 up and 3 to play, while Tappin and Simmons were unable to finish. The scores in the other divisions will be found in the summary. On Monday play will start at 10 o'clock, both rounds being at eighteen holes. In addition there will be an open handicap for those unable to get here in time for to-day's tournament. The annual dinner of the Dyker Mendow Golf Club will take place at the Brooklyn Club on the evening of January 13. college affair, the date was changed. The golf club has about one hundred and twenty members. The committee in charge of the dinner consists of Horace C. Du Val. Norman S. Dike, Adolph E. Smylle and A. R. Fish.

WON LY A SCORE OF 10 TO 6. The hockey game at the St. Nicholas Rink last night between the McGill University team and a team of picked players from the New-York Ath-Club, the Hockey Club of New-York and the St. Nicholas Skating Club, resulted in a victory for the All New-York team, after an interesting game. The Canadians showed the same weakness in team play which had marked their game of the previous night, and their work was not on a par with what was expected from a picked team of fast Canadian skaters and hockey experts. The rink last night was again thronged, and the liveliest interest was manifested in the contest. The Canadians were not the overwhelming favorites that they had been on Friday, the experts having noticed their lack of team play without which it is difficult to play scientific hockey. The visitors made frequent bursts of brilliant individual play, but when it came to passing they appeared all at sea. The result may give an impetus to hockey playing in this city, but it will be interesting to know what the experts in Canada think of it. A. Howard, of the All New-York team, played

T. A. Howard, of the All New-York leam, played brilliantly, scoring six of the ten goals credited to New-York. B. Phillips came next with three. The All New-York team took the lead at the start and held the advantage to the end. At the end of the first half the score was 4 to 2 in favor of the local players. Toward the close of the second half the Canadians made two goals in quick succession on clever plays by Montgomery and Trihey. The promise was made last night that there would surely be skating at Van Cortlandt Park this mornsurely be skating at Van Cortlandt Park this morning, but the prospects for skating on the lakes in central and Prospect parks are not so bright. At Central Park yesierday the guardians of the public peace said that if the weather continued cold there might be skating on the lakes by Wednesday, and possibly on Tuesday. They did not seem to like the suggestion that the ice would be strong enough for skating on New Year's Day. The Park officials have in the past had a horror of opening up the lakes on a holiday, fearing the great throng of skaters who would flock to the frozen surface on such a day.

Over in Brooklyn the conditions last night were said to be about the same as those around Central Park. The police officials said that the high winds had of late prevented the water from freezing, particularly in the larger lake, and that the weather would have to continue cold if the enthusiasts were to enjoy their favorite outdoor winter sport before Wednesday morning. The old steamer pond in Brooklyn has been filled in, or there would have been good sport there yesterday. The small ponds and lakes on Long Island, on Staten Island and in New-Jersey were all frozen over yesterday, and the youngsters were having a merry time.

Many vexed questions must come up for settlement, and the delegates from the many divisions promise to have their hands full. Unlike former years, the issues this winter are decidedly complicated. There is no positive candidate for the presidency at present. T. J. Keenan, Jr., of Pennsylvania, the present incumbent, has not said a word, even to his intimate friends, which gives them an idea whether he will accept a renomination or not. Isaac B. Potter, of this State, who is usually a factor in the politics of the organization, is keeping quiet at present, and even Sterling Elliott, the perpetual candidate, has nothing to say, except that he is not a candidate for the leadership next year. Conway W. Sams, of Maryland, has promised the present incumbent that he will not be a candidate in case he decides to accept another term, and the factions closely allied with the "outlaw" racing element, which has been working so hard to discredit the present administration and to induce Sams to run, is if a quandary, and really does not know which way to turn. In a private letter received at this office yesterday from the Editor of "The Yachtsman," of London, England, it appears that the Shamrock repeated a rault in the Alisa's design. Mr. Hamilton's letter

As you say, there are many opinions as to the Shamrock's defeat. My own is that the Shamrock is too full aft-1 e, the centre of the load waterline plane is too far aft. This is also the case with the Alisa, but in a much more pronounced form. The must is probably too far aft. Columbia looked a far more businesslike boat, with her small head-

American yachtsmen will remember that the Ailsa did not point as well as the Britannia, and if her fault is correctly indicated as above it will seem strange that it was repeated to some extent in a yacht intended to be a world beater.

A member of the New-York Yacht Club was yesterday discussing the possibility of the next challenge for the America's Cup being for a two master, and he suggested that some further definition should be made. He said:

tion should be made. He said:

What is a schooner? Allowing that she must have two masts, where do you find anything in the deed of gift or in the racing rules of the club to say what a schooner is? What is to prevent a challenger having her masts so close together that she is practically a cutter? In our Eastern waters a so-called schooner did this a short time ago, and she beat the sloops of her own size around the course, while at the same time she was entitled, as against them, to the schooner's ordinary time allowance, sailing at $5 per cent of her racing length. In Eastern waters the repetition of this has since been prevented by a rule, but there is nothing in the documents that govern the racing for the America's Cup to exclude a fake schooner of this kind. It seems to me that this should be provided for hefore any schooner challenge arrives, and not afterward.

Commodore Clarence A. Postley, of the Larch-The "red ball," that magic liftle emblem of skat- mont Yacht Club, was seen yesterday about his new purchase, the big steam yacht Alberta, which he has just taken from A. Edward Tower, of the New-York Yacht Club. He said:

New-York Yacht Club. He said:

The yacht has been at Poughkeepsie, but I will soon have her in the yards of Mr. Manning, who conducted the purchase for me, and then I will make considerable alterations in her interior. I like the boat very much, and she has lots of power, and twin screws, and all that sort of thing, but her interior does not suit me. The galley and the main saloon are both in the wrong place for me. I will have all this changed, and the staterooms will be laid out on a different plan. Her interior will be pulled out and rebuilt, so as to get things the way I want them.

The Alberta is 185 feet long over all, with a water line length of 163 feet 6 inches and a heam of 21 feet. She draws eight feet of water, and was built by Roach, at Chester, Penn., last year, on the design of Gardner & Cox.

Captain Leander A. Jeffrey, formerly the skipper schooner Columbia, who took the Vigilant to England in 1894, will be in command of the new steam yacht Virginia, which has just had her trial trip at Bath, Me. She has been built at the Bath Iron Works for Isaac Stern, of the New-York Yacht Club.

The new schooner Endymion, which has been nearly completed at the Lawley yards for George Lord Day, of the New-York Yacht Club, will be commanded by the same skipper who has been at Mr. Day's right hand in many a long cruise Captain Loesch will now leave the schooner Fleur de Lys and take charge of the new vessel. Andrew Barclay Walker, the owner of the celebrated cutter Allsa, has just arrived in England after a trip to the Arctic regions in the steam yacht Esquimaux. Mr. Walker was accompanied by Dr. McKenzie, his private physician; by a scientist, and by two or three personal friends. From sporting point of view the trip was most successful. Fifty wairus, a couple of whales and a large number of reindeer were taken. The scientist also number of reindeer were taken. The scientist also brought home a large quantity of gold bearing quartz. Mr. Walker took the Esquimaux from the Dundee whalling fleet and altered her to a yacht, changing canvas all round and spending much money on the interior. The yacht first sailed under her bark rig to St. John's, N. F., where the owner and his friends joined her. Thence she sailed for Davis Strait. The alterations in the whalling ship had made her an ideal vessel for an Arctic yachting voyage. On the main deek aft of the bridge a saloon and sleeping quarters for the guests were constructed. These were in a commodious deckhouse, the top of which was level with the bridge, and furnished a promenade. The saloon had room for a party of ten sitting at table, and the walls were enamelled white, with mahogany fittings, and were hung with yachting photographs. Part of the forward wall was laid with tiles, and the fireplace was furnished with an ornamental brass stove. The crew of the Esquimaux numbered fifty-one hands, all told, the men being the pick of Dundee whaling seamen about twenty being Shetlanders and experienced in Arctic navigation. The boat carried tents, colapsible boats and other camping-out effects, and a complete armament for a sporting trip, besides a library of over one thousand volumes, and several instruments that played music by mechanical means.

Inquiries in regard to the internationa races are still coming in, and it is remarked that most of them come from inland places, where men hunger for a whiff of the sea. The following lines arrived yesterday from one of the firm of Rogers, Cuthbert & Ellis, attorneys, of Denver:

Your free and cheerful reply to my inquiry was this morning received, and I hasten to thank you for it. In this busy age it is sometimes well to perform acts of a gratuitious nature, and you may properly permit your better nature to pat itself on the back. When you are sent to Colorado to report the first international race between prairie schooners of Class X you will find in me a pilot of some experience, upon whose assistance you can count. Yours, etc., THEODORE HOLLAND.

which contested for the Canada's Cup off Toronto last summer, will meet again. Although the time for putting in the challenge has expired under the rules governing the challenging for the Fisher Cup, the Rochester Yacht Club members who now hold this trophy will not stand on ceremony if a good race can be brought on, and a challenge good race can be brought on, and a challenge from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club is expected in a few days. There will be no more boats built for this, the object of the challenge being to give the Payne design, called the Beaver, another chance to see what she can do in something else than light airs. The Rochester and the Royal Canadian clubs have been on the best of terms for over twenty years, and good racing is looked for when these two 35-footers, said to be the fastest of their length in the world, shall meet again.

PROSPECTS IN BILLIARDS, POOL, BOWL-

ING AND ICE HOCKEY. The usual holiday full made last week a dull on at most of the athletic clubs, but as soon as the new year is well launched the busiest indoor season in many years will be fully under way. Plans are practically complete for the club championship tournaments at both billiards and pool in nearly all of the organizations in this borough; several others in Brooklyn will also be started soon after New Year's. Bowling tournaments will attract more than their usual share of atention during the next two months, while the championship lice hockey season is now proceeding under most favorable auspices, as the clubmen are showing more interest in the sport than ever before. At the New-York and Knickerbocker Athletic clubs water polo and swimming competitions claim a good deal of attention, while "squash" racquets and handball at the latter and hand tennis at the former are among the sports in which will be held club competitions. all of the organizations in this borough; several Probably the most important of the billiard tournaments next month will be that for the championship of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, which opens this week. There are twelve players entered, and they will be divided into two classes, the first playing 14-inch balk line and the second straight In the former such experts as Dr rail billiards. A. B. Miller, John A. Hendrick and Florian Tobias, A. B. Miller, John A. Hendrick and Florian Tobias, all three of them contestants in the recent Class B championship tournament, will be seen, while in the second the poorer players of the club will compete. The Knickerbocker Afhietic Club championship pool tournament has been scheduled to begin on February 25, and already thirteen players have entered. The first four at the finish of this competition will be chosen as the team to represent the club in all interclub competitions, and suitable prizes will be awarded. A handicap pool tournament will be held later.

The New-York Athletic Club billiard championship is likely to rest once more between Dr. Walter G. Douglas and Robert D. Radeliffe. The former held the title two years ago, but last winter Radcliffe upset all calculations by beating Douglas in a cliffe upset all calculations by beating Douglas in a close final game. There is no dark horse in sight this season, and unless some unknown expert bobs up and again upsets calculations, Radcliffe and Douglas will probably have the final struggle to themselves again this season. Douglas put up a strong game in the recent Class B amateur championship tournament, and he is particularly keen about winning back his lost prestige in the club. He owes Radcliffe a beating, and unless the latter shows better form than last winter he is not likely to hold his honors.

The Montauk Club, of Brooklyn, will open its club championship billiard tournament also this week. The players will be divided into two classes, A and B, and the games will be continued the next two or three weeks. Entries closed last next two or three weeks. Entries closed last. Thursday, and the list was entirely satisfactory to the committee. The Hanover Club's billiard tournament still drags on, and in the lower classes the end is not in sight yet. In at least two classes of this competition there were too many entries to play the usual "round robin" schedule, as the interest has lagged somewhat, owing to the length of the series.

Brooklyn has gone hockey mad this winter, and the Clermont Avenue Skating Rink presents a busy scene almost every evening. The transfer of the Brooklyn Skating Club's champion hockey team over to the Crescent Athletic Club has stirred up a lot of interest among the club element across the Bridge, and all eyes are turned toward the Ama-Bridge, and all eyes are turned toward the Ama-teur Hockey League's championship pennant for a second season. The champions played a hard practice game on Thursday evening against an all-Brooklyn team, and won by 3 goals to 1. Dobby was the star of the evening again, as so often last winter, and he "shot" all three of the goals for his team in the first half.

The New-York Athletic Club's success in beating the McGill University team of visiting Canadian experts at the St. Nicholas Rink on Friday evening has brought joy to the hearts of the Mercury Foot hockey lovers, and at the same time a cury Foot hockey lovers, and at the same time a new confidence in their team's ability to win back the league championship, which they held for two seasons. Last year the Canadians, practically the same team as that which the New-Yorkers beat on Friday, proved invincible here in New-York, and even the All New-York seven falled to beat them. The addition of Hornfeck and Cohb to the forward line of the New-York Athletic Club team made a marked improvement, and the Crescent players will find it no easy task to retain the league championship this winter.

The Montclair Athletic Club has withdrawn its teams from both the Amateur Hockey League and the Athletic Bowling League, and it is rumored that it will give up outside competition. The reason assigned for the hockey team's withdrawal was that Hornfeck, its crack forward, has joined the New-York Athletic Club team; one other player was sick, and still a third had dropped out, weak-ening the team badly. The reasons for the with-drawal of the bowling team were less tangible, and some disappointment is felt among the other and some disappointment is felt among the other members of the Athletic League at the late hour of its resignation, after the schedule had been ar-ranged and even started with the team in. It is now too late to fill the vacancy, and the season will be finished out with seven clubs, all of the Montclair games being cancelled.

HORSES BURNED IN A STABLE.

FIREMEN UNABLE TO GO TO THEIR RESCUE-SOME OF THE ANIMALS ESCAPE.

A fire which looked so threatening at the beginning as to cause three alarms to be sent in started on the first floor of the four story brick stable at No. 156 East Fifty-seventh-st. at 10:45 o'clock last night. The place is owned by Kaplan. There were thirty horses in the buildwere taken out safely and moved to a meanly stable.

The fire was out by 11:30 o'clock. Chief Croker estimated the loss at £20:000, as there were many carriages and other vehicles, and some hay and other things of value in the stable.

Many of the horses in the stable broke from their stalls and scrambled about to get away from their stalls and scrambled about to get away from the flames. No one dared go into the burning building after them, and the horses ran wildly through the lower floors. It was feared that they would all be lost, but after the fire was out the firemen and hostlers went in and led many of them out. Some of them, however, had been burned to death.

PARDON FOR A LIFE PRISONER.

He was convicted of murder, first degree, for killing a fellow workman in the cement works at Newburg. He was sentenced to be hanged, but on appeal by the jury his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Recently William J. Youngs, secretary to the Governor, looked over the case, and came to the conclusion that the man never could have been convicted if he had had a good defence. Baldwin has never given the slightest cause for a mark for breach of discipline in prison.

In this view Commissioner Orr agrees, though he has not publicly committed him-self to its advisability. Mr. Coler argues that a branch tunnel from Whitehall-st. to South Brook-lyn would greatly increase the revenues of the main tunnel road.

SPANISH-AMERICAN TOPICS.

The famous statesman and financier of the Argentine Republic, Senor Pellegrini, who was at one time Vice-President and who will surely be President within a few years, has returned to Buenos Ayres from one of those numerous trips he makes to Europe whenever it is necessary to strengthen Argentine finances. Before being director of the National Bank and Vice-President of the Republic, Senor Pellegrini was editor and proprietor of a paper founded by him, the "Sur America," which which roved to be the basis of his political and financial career. Now the Buenos Ayres papers say that they will have a new competitor and confrère in "El Pais," a journal to be immediately established by Señor Pellegrini, with an initial capital of 500,000 pesos, or dollars. The paper will be a morning one, and will prove to be a vallant, able and lively ad-dition to the press of Buenos Ayres.

Brief dispatches mentioned recently the election of General Pando to the Presidency of Bollvia after a struggle of several weeks which he directed against the Government of Señor Alonzo. Bolivian papers received at a later date than the telegraphic dispatches publish the particulars of Pando's inauguration. He delivered before taking the oath of office an eloquent speech, in which he said, among other declarations:

It is necessary to forget our past dissensions and set aside the questions which divide us most profoundly, as, for instance, that of the system of government to be definitely adopted. There is no necessity for a convention to discuss whether we must adopt the federative system or continue to uphold a "unitaria" or centralized republic. We must decide which is the city to be the permanent seat of the Government. Up to the present time the Bolivian Government has resided in turn in three capitals-Sucre, Oruro and La Paz-and the rivairies between these cities have had a great deal to do with the frequent revolutions which disturbed the Republic. General Pando said in concluding his inaugural address:

Let us, before anything else, settle the question of the administrative reorganization of the country, and all other questions of an international char-acter affecting the sovereignty of Bolivia. He meant by these words the pending affairs of frontiers with Paraguay, Peru and Chili, and the arrangement of the external debt of the Republic. The monarchist propaganda continues to be active in Brazil, despite the evident impossibility of restoring the royal or imperial power in that newest republic in America. Quite recently the Imperialists have circulated a pamphlet inciting the people to start a revolution, with the assistance of the army. A Brazilian paper states that this propaganda is paid for annually by the religious congregations. It recalls the fact that the Comte d'Eu, a member of the Orleans family, and his wife, relatives of the late Emperor Dom Pedro, and the only pretender to the abolished throne of Brazil, are devoted Roman Catholios, and are supported by the whole clerical press in France. To those who are aware of the unity of views and purposes which predominate in the directing classes of the Catholics, it was natural to accuse at first sight, though without assured evidence, the Brazilian congregations of following the inspirations of the French clerical circles, the adversaries of the republican form of government in Brazil as well as in France. propaganda is paid for annually by the religious pening of the Brazilian Chambers with regard to the transfer, so frequently discussed already, of the capital of the Republic from Rio Janeiro to some inland city. This time the motion was to be some mand city. This time the motion was to be made by a Deputy of Rio itself. It will be proposed that the new capital of the Union should be at Bello Horizonte. The present Federal district of Rio Janetro would form a new State, named the State of Guanabara. The project finds few partisans among the people and the papers of the ancient capital of the country.

SANCTUARY IS WHAT SHE MEANT.

Reporters sometimes lapse into a temporary forgetfulness of their surroundings when they are gathering news in a church, and occasionally hurt other people's feelings by being rather too busi-nesslike within the sacred walls. A hint, how-ever, is generally enough to set this right, and seldom, indeed, is there need for the withering rebuke which a fat negro woman gave to a group of newsgatherers who were waiting in a colored church on the West Side on a recent Sunday afternoon to get the result of a meeting of trustees which was being held behind closed doors in the vestry room. The wait was a tedious one, and an argument arose about the relative astuteness or stupidity of English and Boer army officers. Perhaps the reporters' voices did rise a little higher than they should have done. Anyway a big negro woman suddenly confronted them, and in tones of deepest indignation exclaimed: "It is downright scan alous that seeh loud talkin should go on in de very sarcophagus of God!" seldom, indeed, is there need for the withering re-
